

The no call list is a great idea. It is a form of harassment when you continue to get calls when you don't want to. Any one else who calls your house in such a manner can be charged by the police depending on their local ordinance. I have cancelled products, just because after purchasing them, I learned they put me on a call list. We get enough calls from people we know, much less from companies trying to sell us junk we don't need. As it is, my number is unpublished and unlisted.
